

MAREMMA

The Maremma is in the southwestern region of Tuscany and borders the Mediterranean. It is a new, modern region and produces some of Italy's most expressive and sought after wines. It is the home to many of Italy's Super-Tuscan wines.

The estate of Castello di Montepò spans 1482 acres of western Maremma and is rich in biodiversity and soil types. The estate only has a fraction of acres planted to vineyards. The many forests and hills are home to a variety of wildlife including wild boar which have lived on the estate since Renaissance times.

"Maremma is today's most innovative face of Tuscan winemaking."
